It is with great pleasure that the Department of Economics of Beloit College salutes its graduating class of 2012. We have watched this outstanding group of students develop their abilities during their time at Beloit College. We predict that these collegiate achievements will be matched by success in careers, graduate school and community leadership. We wish our new alumni all the success in the world as we look forward to a long continuing relationship with them.

Professors Jeff Adams, Emily Chamlee-Wright, Bob Elder, Jerry Gustafson, Josh Hall, Arielle John, Warren Palmer, Diep Phan

Aman Satyam Bharti (India) is graduating with majors in Economics & Management, International Relations and Modern Languages, his primary language being French, and secondary Russian. Post-graduation, he will be interviewing for positions with the World Bank and the United Nations. Having grown up living in Iran, the Netherlands, India, Nepal, Turkey and Myanmar, Aman did not study abroad but has spent two summers living and traveling in India, and spent last summer continuing his study of Russian in Belarus and traveling in Europe. His hopes for the future are to keep traveling, learn languages, go to graduate school, and make use of the liberal arts education Beloit College has given him to aid in development and reform work wherever needed. Indeed, the four years he has spent at Beloit is the longest he has lived in one place. Beloit has truly become his home. Having arrived at Beloit College at the age of 16 with a World Affairs Center Scholarship, Aman spent his eight semesters in Beloit growing personally, academically, spiritually, emotionally, socially, and entrepreneurially. He began a soup and sandwich delivery service on campus, named Bam Sass Daddy that sold over 700 sandwiches and 600 sides since November 2011. He was also involved in dance, having performed in the December Dance Workshops, Chelonia, and the Senior Dance Shows both his junior and senior years as well as a modern dance rendition of Cinderella, featuring the music of Ella Fitzgerald. During his time at Beloit, Aman also tutored French and Calculus, was involved with the International Club, Ping Pong Club, Art Club, Intramural Frisbee, Intramural Volleyball, Russian Club, French Club, and made a failed attempt to start a Bollywood Club. Aman says, “My mistakes and failures at Beloit College, and in life, are the learning experiences that have shaped the person I am today. I have regrets, but I would not alter anything that has happened to me.” He looks forward to finding success and happiness wherever life takes him.

Ilija Bojovic (Belgrade, Serbia) is a double major in Economics and Russia. One of the main reasons that Ilija came to Beloit was to get a liberal arts education and experience as many classes as possible. He studied abroad his junior year in Moscow (fall) and Hong Kong (spring). Last summer, Ilija held an internship at a chemical company called Diversey that used to be a part of SC Johnsons. He did market research, calculating sales opportunity estimates. After graduation, Ilija will return to Diversey that is now part of Sealed Air, this time working in distribution with one of the key accounts - Staples. His goal is to obtain an MBA in a few years. His favorite thing about Beloit is that it gave him many opportunities for various discussions, activities and academic success. Ilija is thankful to the Moore family for helping him come to Beloit College.

Anna Carlsmitth

Canberk Dayan (magna cum laude, Istanbul, Turkey), has earned a BA in Economics from Beloit College and a BS in Engineering Management Systems from Columbia University. He hopes to find a job in the United States or Europe in the finance or consulting sector. As an intern last summer, Canberk took part in the corporate finance team of KPMG, Istanbul. He was also the president of three different clubs (International Club, MS Club and Table Tennis Club) as well as the director of WISE Foundation for two semesters. In addition to spending six semesters on the Dean's List, Canberk was a four-year World Affairs Scholar (given to only 4 of the incoming freshman). Canberk also tutored Math, Physics and Turkish. He credits Beloit College for allowing him to show leadership on campus; make life-lasting friendships, as well as, open the doors of Columbia University to help him become an engineer. Canberk would like to thank his family who gave him a tremendous amount of support and then his professors at Beloit College who helped to make his dreams come true. “I feel very privileged to have studied in such a great school which does a better job than an Ivy League school in teaching and taking care of students individually.”

Isak Englund, an International Political Economy major and Political Science minor, will be traveling to India for a 10-month fellowship program in social enterprise this July. After attending American University in the spring of 2011, and traveling to Ghana as part of a seminar class entitled "International Environment and Development", he became deeply interested in development work. As an intern with Environment America last spring and the Saint Paul, MN mayor's office last summer, Isak gained experience in the field of environmental protection and public service. He hopes to work in the field of environmental protection or international development in the future. At Beloit, Isak participated in choir as a recipient of a Marjorie Brown Leff music scholarship, played on Beloit's ultimate frisbee team, UFF, as a captain in 2011-12, and made the Dean’s List in over half his semesters.

Bryan A. Fayer (Pembroke Pines, Florida) is a major in Business Administration. Although he never visited Beloit College before enrolling; he was recruited to play Quarterback but ended up being converted to a Tight End/ H-Back for the Beloit College football team. He had 16 other Division 3 and Division 2 schools interested in him but Beloit offered him the most money and it seemed to be the best fit. Bryan joined the Alpha Zeta Chapter of Sigma Chi during his freshman year and was honored to serve as Vice President for the last year and a half. He has three jobs waiting for him back in his hometown. He will coach and teach at his high school along with working at MD Billing Concepts where he plans on doing physician billing. “Beloit has taught me many valuable lessons that cannot be taught anywhere else. Beloit College forces you to be put in positions that you are not used to being around anywhere else, helping you see different perspectives in different lights you never knew existed.” Bryan has no regrets about his time at Beloit College and is very grateful to have been given the opportunity to obtain such a substantial education.

Matthew J. Gavin

Michael Horton (Madison, Wisconsin), is an Economics & Management major. He was a four year member of the Beloit College basketball team; captaining the team his senior year. He was awarded the National Association of Basketball Coaches Honors and was a three time member of the academic all-conference team. Additionally, he received the Regal Beloit Corporation Endowed Internship. During the summer after his junior year, he worked as a summer intern for the Regal Beloit Corporation located in downtown Beloit. After graduation, he will work as a financial representative in a post-grad internship program at Northwestern Mutual in Middleton, Wisconsin. His time at Beloit was filled with great experiences and great memories. He would like to thank all the Economics professors who helped along the way and motivated him by pushing him to work hard.

Jordan A. Jaenicke (Bourbonnais, Illinois), a major in Business Administration, is hoping to receive an offer from Coyote Logistics as a National Account Manager. He hopes to be a salesman once he gets his foot into the business world. Jordan played on the varsity baseball team for four years and one year on the golf team. He was awarded the 2010 Defensive Player of the Year, 2011 Central All-Region team, and 2011 Clutch Player of the Year. Jordan was on the Dean’s List in the fall of 2011.

Alex Jennings (Verona, Wisconsin) is graduating with a major in Economics & Management. He will be pursuing a career in sales at Coyote Logistics in Chicago as an Account Manager. While at Beloit, Alex was a member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity where he held multiple executive positions. Alex played outfield on the baseball team for four years which included being a member on the 2009 Midwest Conference Championship team and the 2011 Midwest Conference North Division Champions.

Ashley Lanham (magna cum laude, Dundee, Illinois) is a double-major in Economics & Management and Russian. During her time at Beloit College, she was highly active both on and off campus. She started a campus garden, performed in various dance shows, and was a Resident Assistant, a member of TRiO-SSS, and the student dining co-op. In addition to her coursework and on campus activities, Ashley interned with the Green Earth Institute in Chicago as an Americorps M3C Fellow, interned and conducted sociological research with a 4-H afterschool program as part of the Duffy Community Partnerships, studied abroad in Moscow, interned with the Welty Environmental Center as a Sustainability Fellow, conducted an independent urban agriculture feasibility study for a coalition of local non-profits, and tutored community members. Ashley also received several awards in recognition of her achievements. She was on the Dean’s List all four years, a Presidential Scholar, the George E. and Betty B. Dutton Scholar, and was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Sigma Iota. Soon after graduation, Ashley will be moving to Phoenix, Arizona to begin a two-year stint as a high school math and social studies teacher with Teach For America.

You Lin (Qingdao, China), a major in Economics & Management, will be taking an honors term in the fall semester of 2012. She will spend the summer interning with Tasman Consulting, a HR consulting company with a focus on mergers and acquisitions integration. During her time at Beloit College, in addition to earning Dean’s List honors for 4 years, she worked for the Office of Admissions, where she was responsible for various aspects and stages of the international applicants’ application process. She was also a Teaching Assistant for the Departments of Modern Languages, History and Economics. She would like to thank all of the professors in the Beloit College Economics Department for their generous guidance and support. A special thanks to Professor Warren Palmer for being her mentor and giving her valuable career advice and Professor Emily Chamlee-Wright for her help and efforts in making the honors term possible.

Allen R. Loth (East Troy, Wisconsin) is a major in Business Administration and played baseball at Beloit College for four years. Playing baseball lead to some of his best memories as the baseball team won the 2009 Midwest Conference Championship, 2011 Midwest North Division Champions and is hoping to add a 2012 conference championship to that list. This past, summer he was able to take his baseball knowledge back to his home town where he was the youth baseball coordinator and gained valuable experience in managing and leading people to achieve a common goal. In the future, he hopes to use this experience, in combination with his business degree and baseball background, to someday work for a professional sports franchise.

Mashail Malik is a double major in Economics & Management and Philosophy, and a minor in Political Science. She will be spending her summer back home in Pakistan, and will return in the fall to begin a Masters in International Relations at the University of Chicago. During her time at Beloit, Mashail has held two summer internships and also served as a Resident Assistant on campus for two years. In the summer of 2010, she served as a research intern with the UNDP Gender Support Programme on a project promoting alternative dispute resolution systems targeted at women in Pakistan’s rural areas. Most recently, she interned with a non-partisan think tank promoting legislative development and transparency in Pakistan’s fragile democracy. In her junior year, Mashail was fortunate enough to study abroad in Scotland – an experience that will stay with her forever. What she will miss the most, however, is her time at Beloit College. She would like to thank her amazing professors – and especially her advisor Emily Chamlee-Wright – for helping her make the best of her four years at Beloit.

Brian A. Maughn (Sunrise, Florida) is graduating with a major in Economics & Management. He will be pursuing a career as a Financial Advisor with AXA Advisors in Pittsburgh, PA. As a freshman at Beloit, Brian joined the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, as well as, the football team. Lettering in all four seasons in football, he was also fortunate enough to break all of the single-season and career passing records at Beloit College. Brian earned Honorable Mention on the All-Conference Team. He also led the Midwest Conference in passing and total offense in the 2010 season. During his time at Beloit, Brian learned to be more open-minded and accept people for who they are. “Beloit has undoubtedly helped me evolve into a well-rounded and mature individual. I am extremely thankful for the educational and athletic opportunities throughout my four years here and want to thank the Beloit College faculty, staff and community for making my college experience an unforgettable one.”

Jenna Murphy-Judelson (Winchester, Massachusetts) is graduating with a degree in Economics & Management. In her four years at Beloit, she is credited with founding and captaining the first women’s Ultimate Frisbee team. She served on the executive board for the local sorority Theta Pi Gamma, as Treasurer, a position she held for two-terms. Jenna spent her third term studying economics at Stellenbosch University in South Africa, where she also volunteered at the after-school program in the Kayamundi township. She has been granted an Irish Work-VISA and will be spending a year applying her knowledge of Economics and Management by studying the restaurant industry in Dublin. She plans to take courses with the International Sommelier Guild in order to gain her Sommelier Degree, with hopes of one day become a wine buyer.

Sofia Noorani will be moving to New York in June to start a career in management consulting with Valeocon. She entered the Economics Department because of her interest in development and non-profit work. With the support of Professor Diep Phan, she gave two symposium presentations at Beloit.
and received a grant from the Office of International Education to execute a community development project in Thailand. In her senior year, she was the Executive Director of WISE Foundation in CELEB and started the Beloit Microfinance Program under the advisement of Jerry Gustafson. Sofia credits much of her success to the Beloit Economics Department’s alumni and professors who have offered support and advice throughout her college years. She hopes to explore many careers and locations in her lifetime. She has particular interests in policy and consulting.

Sam Offutt is majoring in Economics & Management with a minor in Asian Studies. As a transfer student, he has a particular fondness and appreciation for Beloit College, its many unique qualities, and its devoted professors. After graduation, he plans on living and teaching English in Japan as a member of the JET program. He is grateful for the guidance and support that the Econ faculty has bestowed upon him.

Ethan Peters (Brooklyn, Wisconsin) is graduating with a double major in Economics & Management and Political Science. Upon graduation, he will continue his studies at the University of Minnesota Twin Cities where he will pursue a Masters of Healthcare Administration. During his time at Beloit College, he was engaged both inside and outside the classroom. For two years he had the privilege of being a member of Belmark Associates, where he was able to apply the skills he learned in the classroom to a wide variety of projects. In the summer of 2011, he worked as an administrative intern for the Beloit Health Systems, and continued to work there for the duration of his senior year. These experiences helped to affirm his desire to work in the healthcare field. He received several awards in recognition of his achievements. He was on the Dean’s List all four years, was the recipient of the McAllister Award, received the Kreider Award in support of his internship, and was recently inducted into Phi Beta Kappa. He wishes to express his deepest gratitude to Beloit College and the Department of Economics for the education and opportunities they have provided to him, with a special thanks to Professors Warren Palmer and Jeff Adams.

Long H. Phan transferred to Beloit College from the University of Wisconsin-Platteville in his sophomore year. In the three years at Beloit, he was involved with LAPC, the WISE Foundation, International Club, Chinese Club, and acquired a research internship and a public relation internship. He is now planning to attend the University of Wisconsin-Madison to pursue a doctorate degree in Statistics. He is forever indebted to the teaching and support of the faculty and students at Beloit College.

Thu Pham (Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam) is a double major in Economics & Management and Media Studies with a minor in Chinese Language. She will be pursuing a career in the entertainment industry with a focus on branding. She plans to work in a Broadway theatre in New York City. Later on, she plans to work in different advertising agencies in the United States for several years before returning to Vietnam to open her own theatre company and to be closer to her parents. During the summer of 2011, she worked for Arts Engine, a media company in New York City, as an outreach coordinator. She also spent a month in Beijing, China conducting qualitative research on classical theatre form. She, along with two other friends, operated a rental business in Manhattan as a secondary source of income. Thu also provided marketing services for theatre, dance and music students on campus. She said that, “what makes Beloit HER Beloit was first, her Vietnamese friends and second, all the other friends that inspire her every day.”

Tom Slusher (Mount Prospect, Illinois) is graduating with a double major in Economics and French and a minor in Mathematics. In addition to spending six semesters on the Dean’s List, he was a Presidential Scholar and a Leff Scholar (Vocal Music), and received the Andy Boggs Music Award as a sophomore. He was also a member of Mortar Board, Phi Sigma Iota (Foreign Language Honor Society), and Phi Beta Kappa. After graduation, he will return to Chicago where he will work as a Case Assistant for Seyfarth Shaw LLP. He is uncertain about his long-term plans, but is looking forward to exploring where his degrees may take him. While at Beloit, he was a member of multiple vocal ensembles, took private lessons in piano and voice, and was a member of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. He also played four years of Varsity Soccer, serving as a captain his senior year and earning 2nd Team All-Conference Honors. He gained invaluable professional experience working with Belmark Associates and as a Learning Assistant with Learning Enrichment & Disability Services. In the spring of his junior year, he had the opportunity to study abroad in Rennes, France, which was one of the most rewarding experiences of his college career. He is forever grateful to the faculty, coaches and staff of Beloit College who aided him throughout his time here and helped him learn to be a responsible student and citizen.

Danko Tarabar (Belgrade, Serbia), a double major in Economics and Mathematics, will follow his passion instilled in him by the Department, and commence doctoral studies in economics at West Virginia University beginning in the fall 2012. During his four years at Beloit, he was fortunate to have had many amazing experiences, both in and out of the classroom. He is also happy to have been honored by several awards and recognitions for his achievements at Beloit. In the summer of 2011, through the generosity of the Department’s endowed internship award, he interned as a research assistant at the Center for College Affordability and Productivity, a nonprofit think-tank based in Washington, D.C. that concerns itself with the economics of higher education. He is honored to have been a part of the Belmark Associates team for two years, with whom he completed many great projects. After obtaining his Ph.D., he hopes to enter academia, and teach at a small liberal arts college, preferably one as amazing as Beloit. “I would like to express my profound gratitude to all the professors in our small but excellent department, especially my mentor Josh Hall and Emily Chamlee-Wright, for making economics the most interesting science there is.”

Travis Towns (Edgerton, Wisconsin), a major in Economics & Management, is planning on accepting a job offer with Capital Wealth Advisory Group in Madison. He spent the second semester of his senior year interning with them which later turned into a full-time position. At Beloit, Travis was committed to Basketball and Track and Field. He was Academic All-Conference four times. Travis was named to the 2010-2011 National Association of Basketball Coaches Honors Court. He was also accepted to the Beloit College Mortar Board due to his exceptional demonstration of Scholarship, Service and Leadership.

Jacob A. Tresemer (Rockford, Illinois) is graduating with a major in Business Administration. He has enjoyed his time at Beloit as both a student and an athlete. Jacob played on the Varsity Baseball team for four years and was a star on three successful intramural basketball teams. He is currently interviewing with the insurance company, Chartis, and the logistics company, C.H. Robinson. At Beloit, Jacob was on the Dean’s List for four semesters and was a recipient of the Dwight and Nancy Logan Hill Memorial Endowed Scholarship. He worked on campus as a Kemper Lab Aide and a Tax Assistant. If his current search for employment does not work out, Jacob plans on attending graduate school for Accounting and eventually earning a CPA.

Regina Willensky (New York, New York) is graduating with a double major in Economics & Management and Environmental Studies.
She will be pursing her Master’s degree this fall at Duke University in Environmental Management, with a concentration in Environmental Economics and Policy. Regina spent the spring of 2011 in Washington D.C., studying International Environment and Development at American University. While in D.C., Regina was a legislative intern for United States Senator Charles E. Schumer of New York aiding the development of agriculture and environmental legislation. In 2010, she was a Beloit College Sustainability Fellow incubating and launching a line of local, organic, and seasonal products at Bushel & Peck’s Local Market in Beloit. Throughout her four years at Beloit, Regina served as the Environmental Studies Department student representative. Regina was also an active member of the Upsilon chapter of the Kappa Delta Sorority as the academic excellence chair. Regina is especially grateful to her professors for their mentorship, wisdom, and superlative pedagogy these past four years.

Michael Williams (cum laude, Chanhassen, Minnesota), a major in Anthropology and Economics & Management, plans to pursue a career that will satisfy his eternal curiosity in the cultural, social and economic repercussions of emerging technology. Michael is currently in the process of obtaining a position with Thomson Reuters West, whom he worked for the summer of 2011 as an intern programming and editing machine learning tools. During his time at Beloit, Michael participated in the Koch Research Colloquium led by Josh Hall, wrote a book review published in the Journal of Global Analysis, and wrote a story about Beloit’s long extinct secret society, the Turtle Mound Society, for the college’s newspaper. Prior to deciding that digging holes and sifting dirt all day was not his ideal career, Michael spent a summer working for the Illinois State Archaeological Survey, descending into muddy mosquito-filled forests with his trusty shovel, dirt screen, and several cans of bug spray. Michael will remember most fondly the many hours spent in the Kemper Economics Lab, studying with fellow economics students just days before major projects and tests that filled everyone with existential fear and dread. Wherever Michael ends up, he hopes he’ll be able to come back and visit all of the wonderful professors and people he met during his time at Beloit.

Scott Williams (Beloit, Wisconsin) is a double major in Business Administration and Political Science. He hopes to receive a job offer from BMO Harris Bank in Chicago to fill a personal banker position. He interviewed at two branches and has received positive feedback. Scott was involved in extensive work providing aid to Romani street children in Romania and Native American youth from some of the poorer reservations in South Dakota and Minnesota. For the last two years, he worked as a peer mentor and study table assistant for the Student Support Services program. Before attending Beloit and for the first two years at Beloit, he worked as an assistant general manager at Blooming of Beloit. In addition to spending all eight semesters on the Dean’s List, Scott is graduating magna cum laude and has recently been inducted into the Beloit College Alpha Gamma Tau chapter of the Pi Sigma Alpha national political science honors society.

Yu (Vivien) Wu (Chengdu, Sichuan, China) is majoring in Economics. Her post-graduate plans are to continue interviewing for jobs that focus on finance and businesses management. She plans to attend graduate school for business in the next five years. Currently, Vivien is interviewing with two companies that she interned with during her junior year. One is Falcon Energy Group in Singapore and another is Merrill Lynch Wealth Management in San Francisco. Those two companies represent two different industries and have broadened her scope in planning her future career path. During the Spring 2012 semester, Vivian studied in the ACM (Associated Colleges of Midwest) Business & Entrepreneurship Program in Chicago. Through visiting and talking to different start-up business owners in Chicago, the program has inspired Vivien to be an entrepreneur in the future to some extent. Meanwhile, she also held a research internship with The Marco Consulting Group in Chicago. She hopes that attending the program during her last semester will be a good way to transition from college life to the real world. During her three and half years of college life at Beloit, Vivien also participated actively in the music department, by joining the piano ensemble and performing in the piano recitals at the end of each semester. She also worked at the circulation desk in the library since her sophomore year. Besides that, Vivien was also active in organizations such as the World Wildlife Fund (WWF) and hopes to contribute a little bit to build a future in which people live in harmony with nature. Vivien really wants to say thanks to the entire Econ Department for providing her with all kinds of guidance and support. She especially wants to thank to her advisor, Professor Jeff Adams, for providing me with advice and opportunities. She is also thankful to Professor Ranjan Roy, of the Math Department, for always being supportive of her. Vivien truly hopes that she can give back to the Econ Department and to Beloit College one day. She is confident that through hard work, that day will come soon!

David Yu (Shenzhen, China) loves Beloit College. Attending Beloit was one of the most important strategic decisions he has made in his life. While at Beloit, David learned three things. First, he learned how to learn. This includes the ability to relate to familiar patterns when dealing with new problems and interacting with new people, and the ability to pick things up quickly. Second, David learned to think critically and objectively. “People love talking about positive things. There is nothing wrong about that; it just drives people to make irrational decisions, both personally and professionally. When you are too bullish on something, the bubble bursts, and the stock market crashes,” said David. The last thing

David learned was to tolerate the differences. “In my ballroom dance class, we are required to switch partners constantly. I found out that people are so different,” said David. “Although this might sound like a cliché, when you are in real situations, you might think that people think the same as you do, but they don’t. It’s important to learn how to deal with the differences.” David believes that technology has sped up everything and made people impatient and, very impatient. The net result of impatience is a lack of commitment and zero tolerance of other people’s peccadilloes. The world is not perfect, and nobody is perfect. “If you keep pursing the magic formula or looking for the perfect people, you might wake up with nothing the next day.” David is extremely grateful to all the professors who taught him.

Jerrica Zaric (Monmouth, Illinois), is graduating with an Economics and Studio Art double major. Upon graduation, she will be joining Laughlin Constable, an advertising agency in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, as a Junior Project Manager. Jerrica’s first collegiate experience with Project Management comes from her time as Senior Manger of Belmark Associates (2011-2012). Throughout this experience, Jerrica managed four talented associates in projects examining various industries. In the summer of 2011 Jerrica held a Market Research Analyst internship at Kerry Ingredients in Beloit, benefiting from the generous financial support from the Department through the Belmark Alumni Endowed Internship Award. In addition to these opportunities, Jerrica was able to study abroad in South Africa, serve as an Orientation Leader, work as a TA, and be the Assistant Director of Gallery ABBA throughout her time at Beloit. She is eminently grateful for the support she received from the Department for the last four years that have made her Beloit experience a unique and fruitful one.
Erlan Zhang (Chengdu, China) is a major in Economics & Management with a minor in Japanese. Her post-graduate plan is to return to China and start to work. She hopes to go to graduate school after a year of work experience. She is currently interviewing with Deloitte, KPMG and Standard Chartered Bank. She interned at HSBC Bank in the summer of 2010 and Huaxi Securities Co., Ltd in the summer of 2011. Besides Economics, Erlan was dedicated to studying the language and the culture of Japan. She was a candidate of the Japan-America Student Conference (JASC). In the last semester of her college life, she chose to study aboard in Japan so that she could gain personal growth by being exposed to new ways of thinking and living. In addition to spending seven semesters on the Dean’s List, Erlan was also involved in other activities on campus. She was in the Percussion and Jazz ensemble, including numerous performances. Besides that, she is a member of Phi Sigma Iota and Mortar Board Honor Society, which allowed her to gain leadership and the idea of serving others that will definitely help her in her upcoming careers. She thinks that the most interesting part-time job she held on campus was as football manager, which made her consider teamwork and never give up. She has been inspired by Economics department and thanks them for their hard work.
